REUNION OF POST PHIL KEARNY, NO; 8, G. A. R., AT IRVING HALL, MARCH 25, 1868 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)DOWNLOAD PDF

Forgotten Books, United States, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Reunion of Post Phil Kearny, No; 8, G. A. R., At Irving Hall, March 25, 1868 It is with feelings of peculiar gratification that I appear before you this evening, to perform a duty to the hero-dead, and enjoy the pleasure of addressing you, in order to recall one of those prominent figures in the greatest war-picture of the world, whose memory you have honored by selecting his name as the denomination of your Post. To me this selection has given the liveliest satisfaction, since, brought up with him in a childless grandfather's house, we were united by ties stronger than those which often bind together men who are nearer in relationship. Throughout life these bonds were intensified by peculiar circumstances. There was a mutual confidence such as rarely exists except between brothers, and when Kearny went forth to play a distinguished part in the death-struggle for our national existence, my eldest son rode beside him as a trusted member of his staff. This son was with him when he marched forth from the lines of Washington, to occupy the Rebel works at Manassas, close on the steps of the retreating Rebels. He was with Kearny when he saved Hooker, and secured the victory at Williamsburg, and when he assisted in retrieving the lost ground at Fair Oaks and Seven Pines. Again they were together at Harrison's Landing, whence they parted - one for a lingering bed of sickness; the other for a bed of glory. And I never shall recall without emotion the intense passion of grief which for two days possessed the almost dying aide-de-camp, when the news was...
